maria villares

Born in 1940, Maria Villares is a multidisciplinary visual artist known for a career defined by a wide range of techniques and continuous experimentation. Her work encompasses drawing, painting, sculpture, printmaking, collage, ceramics, and installation, with a strong focus on nature and organic objects found by chance, such as seeds, fruit, dried flowers, shells, and twigs.

She began studying art as a teenager, taking classes with modernist artist Nélson Nobrega. In 1957, while a student at MAM/SP, she participated in her first group exhibition. Over the decades, she refined her skills in a variety of techniques, studying with Ângela Leite, Dudi Maia Rosa, and Carlos Fajardo, as well as attending Escola Brasil de Artes and other renowned institutions in Brazil, the United States, and Italy.

Villares gained national recognition for her ceramic work, but expanded her practice across multiple media, participating in solo and group exhibitions in Brazil and abroad. Her best-known series include Muito Além da Maçã (Far Beyond the Apple), which explores metaphors of the female body and the origins of life, and Nexus, inspired by spiderwebs and memories woven through time.
